GEISHA GIRLS WILL FACE DUNN TO-DAY

Japanese Maidens to Be Questioned by Inspector, Who May Order Them Sent Home.

The seventeen geisha girls who are now held prisoners at No. 553 Cabanne avenue to-day will file before the Immigration Inspector, James R. Dunn, who will review each case separately, take the evidence and send it to Washington, where the higher authorities will pass upon his decision. Chief Dunn's decision will not be final, as the bureau may reverse it.

The girls occupy the entire third floor of their new abode, and are neither allowed to see or be seen by other than the Japanese Commissioner General and the watchman employed by the Immigration Bureau. However, they may, by asking permission, walk about the back yard, but must not attempt to leave the premises.

The watchman on duty last night said that the girls are feeling more cheerful and enjoy every convenience that can be accorded them within their narrow limitations. He further said that the change from their recent home, No. 552 Bittel avenue, is for the better, as they are now served with meals from a nearby restaurant and are furnished with good sleeping facilities, while at the other address they were compelled to do their own cooking and sleep as best they could.

Sheridan & Sheridan, attorneys, have been secured for the defense of the maidens and said that "the laws are certainly, in favor of the girls. They have been legally admitted to this country, have practiced their professions on the stage at Fair Japan, have been advertised as high-class artists, and, I believe, their bonds will show them to be all that I say."

Should the decision be unfavorable to the girls, Sheridan & Sheridan will appeal the case to Washington officials. A writ of habeas corpus may be filed to hold them in this country until the proper courts may be given an opportunity to review the case.

PONTIFICAL MASS MARKS THE FIRST DAY'S CEREMONIES
AT THE DIAMOND JUBILEE OF ST. LOUIS UNIVERSITY

The Most Reverend S. G. Messmer, Archbishop of Milwaukee, Conduces Service, and Sermon Is Preached by Archbishop Glenn—Alumni and Clergy From All Parts of the Country Attend.

EXERCISES TO BE HELD AT THE WORLD'S FAIR TO-MORROW.

Solemn pontifical mass in St. Francis Xavier's Church, Grand avenue and Lindell boulevard, with an Archbishop for celebrant and a sermon preached by another Archbishop, marked the exercises yesterday of the first day's celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the founding of the St. Louis University.

The Diamond Jubilee celebration will close with a meeting of the members of the alumni associations of Jesuit colleges throughout the country at the St. Louis University next Wednesday night, when a United Alumni Association will be formed.

The Most Reverend S. G. Messmer, Archbishop of Milwaukee, Wis., sang the mass yesterday, and his Grace, the Most Reverend J. J. Glenn, Archbishop of the Diocese of St. Louis, delivered the sermon. In the sanctuary were the Right Reverend J. J. Hennessy, Bishop of Wichita, Kas.; the Right Reverend Dom Gasquet, O. S. B., president of the Benedictine Order in England, more than fifty priests, including forty Jesuit members of the local secular clergy and clergymen from other cities, and 150 Jesuit scholars.

The church was filled with alumni members and as many others as could gain admittance. The church, spacious as it is, could not accommodate all who wished to attend. Admission was by card, so as to allow all alumni members, especially those from other cities, to attend the services.

Among the latter were Mayor Captive of New Orleans, La., who was accompanied by his staff, composed of his private secretary and three Louisiana officials.

PROCESSION TO CHURCH.
The mass was begun at 10:30 a. m.; it was preceded by a procession from the university on Grand avenue adjoining the church. Forty altar boys, dressed in surplices, followed by 150 scholars, bearing solemnity banners, headed the procession. Forty priests came next, Archbishop Messmer followed them, and after him walked Archbishop Glenn, under a canopy borne by William Hamilton, J. P. Brennan, Edward Brown and J. L. D. McCarthy, who also assisted as ushers.

The Very Reverend Joseph Grinnellman, S. J., Provincial of the Jesuits, acted as assistant priest to Archbishop Messmer. The Reverend H. Moring, S. J., president of the Jesuit College at New Orleans, La., was deacon of the mass and the Reverend Alexander J. Burrows, S. J., president of the Jesuit College at Milwaukee, Wis., was subdeacon.
